

Narrative Thinking Guide

Title of the Selection Cock-a-doodle-hooooooo! By Mick Manning

Source: ISBN-13-978-0-545-11604-6 ISBN-10 0-545-11604-X Scholastic

Genre: Fiction

SOMEONE	Owl is cold, lost, and lonely when he squeezed into a hole in the shed of a farmyard.
Main Character
WANTED	He wanted to learn to be a rooster so he could stay in the hen house.
Goal
BUT	The other roosters didn't want him to stay because he didn't act or cock-a-doodle like a real rooster.
Problem
SO	One of the hens tries to teach owl how to be like a real rooster. Rooster cannot cock-a-doodle and gets angry just as a rat is spotted in the hen house. Owl uses his skills as an owl to catch and eat the rat.
Solution
THEN	Then Owl says, "Cock-a-doodle-hooooooo!" and the other hens proclaim him to be their very own special rooster.
Outcome	